The project that I have decided to undertake for my MDP is a Garment made from recycled and sustainable fabrics, to address the need of helping stop fast fashion clothing items from ending up in landfill by repurposing second-hand clothing or fabrics. I have found that this area has the most opportunities that could be explored and would be the most achievable for a school-based project.

To achieve this, I will be designing and producing a quilted jacket that can be worn in more than one way. This jacket is made for young adults ages 20-30 that are interested in sustainable fashion. The purpose of this garment is to be worn as a statement piece that can be worn with a simple outfit, aiming to promote convocation about the use of sustainable materials. This jacket will be worn during the cold months of the year and will aim to provide a layer over the top of clothing which will provide extra warmth.

I am passionate about this issue surrounding the environment and creating more sustainable fashion, which means I am confident that my project will be able to sustain me throughout the duration of the year.
