AREA OF DESIGN

Fashion Design

Sustainable clothing for the working woman is designed to slow down fast fashion through the manufacturing of clothing from upcycled materials. Through the use of old materials, it has been given a new life to create clothing for business women, with a different approach to its production methods.

I designed a maxi skirt with detailed fishing line around the end which enables it to be worn for numerous occasions whilst holding a creative aspect. The pleated jacket offers a statement piece that is professional and gives the flexibility to be worn to more high-class events.
