For my Major Design Project, I have been looking into the redesign of the Gordon train station and surrounding green spaces, required to accommodate the needs of a growing population in the local area.

The current station is very old, being built in the 1890s; it wasn't designed for the needs of today. This design would target the local community and those who currently use the station on a daily basis. There would be additional opportunities for local business and community events, and play equipment for the local kids, as well as the new green space area attracting more people who live close by.
